CONSUMERS TO PROFIT BY DOUBT

Gas Companies Will Not Collect
Forty Cents Thousand Cubic Feet for Gas During June

REACH AGREEMENT TODAY

Will Charge Forty Cents but Collect
Only Fifteen Until Service Cam-mission Gives Ruling.

The Peoples Natural Gas Company and the Central Fuel company will not attempt to collect forty cents a thousand cubic feet for gas used during the month of June as the consumers were informed some time ago that they would, pending the decision of the Public Service commission on the proposed increase in rates.

The commission has not decided the case, and in order to be on the safe side the gas companies will give each consumer credit on his account. The old rate of fifteen cents a thousand cubic feet still holds good, but the gas companies will show on their books that forty cents has been charged and then when payment is made the consumer will be given credit and the account carried.

There is a difference of opinions as to the powers of the commission and the commission itself is not certain of its rights. As a result the attorney general and the attorney for the commission have been asked for an opinion and this is expected any time.

After filing the petition for a raise in the gas rates here, the two companies notified every consumer that on June 1 the rate of forty cents a thousand cubic feet would be in effect. The patrons of the two companies have questioned the right of the companies to charge this increase without the commission first deciding the matter, and as the payments are due after today many have been wondering if they would be compelled to pay the forty cents a thousand cubic feet as set out in the order. The arrangement of allowing the patrons to pay the old price for the month just ended and then carrying an account for the balance was made today by both the companies.

The City of Rushville threatened to file injunction suits against the gas companies if they forced the forty cent collection. This will not be done now as the companies reached an agreement. The opinion of several attorneys is that the companies could not charge the increase until granted the right by the commission and the consumers will be given the benefit of the doubt until it is finally settled.

ROBERT HAYDON IS HURT

Slammed Against Tree and Wrist Broken While on Visit.

Robert Haydon, seven-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilary Haydon, who are visiting in Nicholasville, Ky., was severely injured one day recently, according to word received here. While he was swinging, the swing suddenly went crooked and he was slammed against the tree. It was thought before he could be hurried to a physician at Lexington that he had been fatally hurt. Examination by the doctor, however, showed that his left wrist was broken and his head and side were bruised. An X-rays picture of his arm was taken to see that everything was all right.

FATHER OF LOCAL MAN DIES

William T. Lambertson, Age 86, Expires Near Bentonville.

William T. Lambertson, age eighty-six years, father of Charles Lambertson of West Fourth street, this city, died yesterday at his home close to Bentonville, Fayette county, from the infirmities of old age. With the exception of nine years, he has lived on the same farm for fifty-nine years. He was born December 25, 1827 in Bracken county, Kentucky and came to Indiana early in life. He married in 1855 and the ten children were born to his wife, nine of whom survive him. The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock conducted by the Rev. L. E. Brown, pastor of the Connersville Christian church. Mr. and Mrs. Lambertson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary nine years ago.

FIREWORKS WILL BE EVEN LARGER

Committee Working on Fourth Celebration Says Additional Attractions May be Secured.

LOCAL BAND MAY APPEAR, TOO

The Fourth of July celebration promises to be even better than the Chamber of Commerce first expected. Additional arrangements have been made with Alfred Bada, who will have charge of the fireworks, and the display will be enlarged, an additional order having been sent to Cincinnati. Bada is here on the job and promises to give the people the best display ever seen in the city.

The committee in charge is working on some other free attractions and two members were in Indianapolis today trying to book a balloon ascension. It is expected that the re-organized Rushville band will appear for the first time at the Fourth celebration.

The baseball game between the Elks and Knights of Pythias lodges is attracting no end of attention. The game will be played Saturday afternoon.

MEDIATION HOPES ARE GLIMMERING

This is Emphasized by Statement Authorized by President Wilson at White House Today.

BRYAN STILL OPTIMISTIC

(By United Press.)

Washington, July 1.—"Things are in as good shape as they can be until the Mexican factions get together," was the quotation authorized by President Wilson today. It emphasized the belief that mediation has finally gone glimmering.

Secretary Bryan, however, declared that mediation is not over. The mediators, he said, had not formally recessed.

Miss Mabel Bonnell of Greencastle is visiting her mother, Mrs. Geo. W. Osborne.

A marriage license was issued this morning to Mack Campbell and Emma Kiskadon. He is forty-nine years old and she is twenty-one.

CIVIC ASSEMBLY BEGINS TONIGHT

First Program Includes Addresses by Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago and Dr. L. J. Naftzger.

MUSIC FOR EACH MEETING

Thursday Afternoon J. B. Lewis Who Gave $10,000 to Movement, Will be One of Speakers.

The program for the three-days session of the Flying Squadron of America, which will be held at the Coliseum in the city park, beginning tonight, was announced today. The meeting tonight will begin at 7:30 o'clock with a song service led by E. O. Excell of Chicago and followed by a solo at 7:55 by Miss Vera K. Mullin. There will be an address by Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, formerly a member of the Illinois legislature, at eight o'clock and then a solo by Everett R. Naftzger. The program will be closed with an address by Dr. Leslie J. Naftzger and a solo by Miss Mullin.

Thursday afternoon, the program will be opened at 2:30 with a song service led by E. R. Naftzger, followed by a solo by Miss Mullin. There will be addresses by J. B. Lewis of Boston and Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, state president of the W. C. T. U. There will be additional solos by Miss Mullin and Frederick Butler.

Thursday evening Prof. Excell will lead the opening song services and solos by E. R. Naftzger and Mr. Butler will be interspersed through the program. Addresses will be given by Mrs. Ella Seass Stewart and J. Frank Hanley, former governor of Indiana.

Friday afternoon, the closing meeting, will open by the usual song service lead by Frederick Butler and other musical numbers will be furnished by Mr. Butler, Miss Mullin and E. R. Naftzger. Addresses will be made at this session by Dr. Ira Landrith of Tennessee and Clinton N. Howard, a chautauqua orator of recognized ability.

A few days ago, J. B. Lewis of Boston, Mass., went to the Flying Squadron headquarters to ask some questions.

He first asked, what is your object? He was told state and national prohibition.

His next question was What is your method? The reply came: Get together all the temperance and prohibition organizations in the United States who are willing to co-operate, and in a vigorous, kindly spirit to do more aggressive work.

What is your first move? Was the next inquiry—and the answer came clear and definite:

"We have secured about a dozen of the leading temperance and prohibition orators and writers in United States, who have banded themselves together into a movement to be known as The Flying Squadron of America. We propose to visit about one hundred and fifty of the largest cities, and college and university towns in the United States, secure the largest auditorium in the cities, stay there about three days with two sessions a day, two speakers in the afternoon and two others at night, with such song leaders as, E. O. Excell of Chicago, with soloists, duets, male quartets etc.

"This plan with speakers and singers each session to be continued for two more days. Three such meetings to be carried on at the same time, and in this way give the great centers of population such an arousing for nation-wide prohibition as has never been witnessed before in

MATTER RESTS WITH THE BOARD

Committee of Women Will Meet With School Trustees to See if They Will Take Over Playground.

WHEN FINANCIALLY ABLE

In Order to Secure Future Success of Project, Meeting of Women Decides on This Course.

The future of the proposed public playground in Rushville will be settled next Monday afternoon when a committee of two women appointed at the meeting in the court house yesterday afternoon will meet with the school board at its regular session to learn if the board is willing to back the playground movement.

The women have raised over seven hundred dollars. They realize that this will do little more than equip the playground as it should be and then the problem of maintaining the ground in future years arose. It was certain, in the minds of the women present, that if the school board or some other agency authorized to raise money did not take hold of the project, that it would be a big task each year to procure enough money to maintain it.

Under the recreation act passed by the general assembly of 1913, the city school board or the city health and charity boards are the only agencies to establish, equip and maintain public playgrounds. Since the Rushville school board will not be financially able to install a playground for several years, it was the intention of the women back of the movement here to procure the money for equipment and running expenses until the school board or some authorized agency was willing to take it over.

According to this law of 1913, any civil city may provide for this expense by levying a tax of one cent on every hundred dollars worth of taxable property the city limits, provided application for the tax is made by one of the boards given the legal right in the law to maintain a playground.

Therefore, in order to secure the future success of the playground, it was the unanimous opinion of the women yesterday that the school board should be the agency back of the playground. A committee of two, Mrs. Louis Lambert and Mrs. A. L. Stewart, was named to meet with the board and confer with it concerning the situation as it now stands.

If this committee finds the school board willing to stand behind the undertaking, it is the intention to ask the board to appoint a playground committee composed of the women who started the playground agitation and worked for its success.

The women agree to raise enough money each year to maintain the playground if it has the promise of the school board or some other legally authorized board that it will take the management off their hands eventually and make it a permanent institution safeguarded by the law.

Nothing else was done yesterday afternoon, except that probable location for the playground was discussed and Mrs. Warder Wyatt was appointed temporary treasurer and Mrs. Louis Lambert temporary secretary until it is determined how the organization will be arranged.

It developed some of the women favored the city park as a site for the playground and others were opposed to it. It was pointed out by opponents of the park that there was no room for a baseball diamond or a swimming pool and that probably

POSTPONES ACTION ON PROHIBITION

Absence of Majority of Rules Committee Today Makes Impossible

SOME WOULD COUNT NOSES

(By United Press.)

Washington, July 1.—Absence of majority of the house rules committee today postponed action for several weeks on a special rule to bring the Hobson national prohibition amendment before a house for a decisive vote.

It was fully believed by congress up until today that the committee would act favorably on the Cantrill resolution calling for immediate consideration of the Hobson amendment. Representative Hobson even went so far a few days ago as to predict that a vote would be taken by July 6 or 7. Members, anxious over the outcome of the voting, believed that it would be preferable to have a count of noses now, rather than to await a program of campaign "education" on prohibition this fall by the "drys." Women suffragists hoped to be able to tack a rider on the proposition so as to secure a suffrage constitutional amendment but the rules committee members were not inclined to give this idea favorable reception.

WINTERS CHARGES TO COME TO NAUGHT

SES NO HOPE OF CONVICTION

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., July 1.—Serious charges against Dr. W. A. Winters, Newcastle, Ind., dentist, his wife and W. R. Cooper, a roomer, growing out of the mysterious disappearance of the dentist's daughter Catherine will not be pressed, announced Robert Abel, private detective, who filed the charges, today.

Abel said positively that he will not appear at Newcastle, July 10, when the trio are scheduled to be tried on charges of conspiracy to murder the girl and burn her body. If he does not back the charges, it is probable all three will be dismissed.

Abel said he had no hope of securing a conviction. He said he had instructed Prosecutor Myers to turn over the evidence he had collected to Mayor Watkins and the police.

J.B.KINSINGER IS RE-ELECTED

Chosen Member of the City School Board For a Term of Three Years and is Not Opposed.

COUNCIL TO PASS ORDINANCE

Will Act On Suggestion of State Fire Marshal Concerning Fireworks—383 Meter Orders.

At a special meeting of the city council last night Dr. J. B. Kinsinger was re-elected to the school board. The term is for three years and he was not opposed for the office.

Nothing of very great importance was done and the meeting was called more for the purpose of discussing several questions than anything else. Two propositions were made to the council to furnish the large tile in which the water meters are being set. J. D. Case proposed to furnish the tile for ninety-nine cents each and it was decided to buy them of Mr. Case. J. P. Frazee offered to furnish the tile from $1 to $1.25, but had different times set out in the bid. The council decided to take Mr. Case's offer as no time limit was given.

Superintendent Mahin reported that the meters were being installed very rapidly. Up until last night the city had 383 orders for meters and Supt. Mahin has three crews at work installing them. He stated that he is having some trouble securing meters because of the strike in Pittsburgh.

City Clerk Gunning was instructed to advertise for bids for coal. The council will receive bids for a year's supply the first meeting in July. The old council had a contract like this but it expired in May.

The council decided to sell the old fire horse and will receive bids up until Thursday night. It is believed that the council will buy another horse to take his place and which will be used at the water and light plant.

Each member of the council has received an ordinance prepared by the state fire marshal regarding July 4 and regulating the shooting of fire crackers and fire arms. The council believed the ordinance would be a good thing and the city attorney was instructed to draw up an ordinance similar to this one and introduce it at the next meeting. It would be too late for this year, but would be in force next year.

Max Goldstein, who conducts a store in East Seventh street asked permission to sell fire-works July 4 on the down town streets. He was

Business Insurance

In a letter to a New York newspaper the manager of a talking machine company wrote:

"We advertise as a sort of business insurance, in winter and summer, in good times and bad, and our policy has made our product famous the world over."

This advertiser uses the newspapers very largely and has secured splendid co-operation from local distributors.

Business is so good that his factory, even in the dull season, is far behind in its orders.

Business insurance through newspaper advertising has made dull times sometimes unknown to this concern.

Vera K. Mullin will have a prominent part in the civic assembly which begins at the Coliseum tonight. She will sing at all of the meetings, with the exception of Thursday night.

Buoyancy of Fresh and Salt Water.
A Chinese lad dropped his ball in a narrow hole and could not get it out. So he poured water in the hole, thinking that he would float the ball to the surface. As the ball was slightly heavier than water, it remained on the bottom. Then he thought of mixing salt with the water, as he knew that salt water would float denser objects than fresh. This he did and was rewarded with the floating ball.

This particular fact is demonstrated at the mouths of rivers. Objects rolling along the bottom of a fresh river, too heavy to come to the top, will rise when they are carried out to sea. The general rule also applies to floating bodies. For instance, a ship with a cargo on the sea will sink sometimes a foot on entering a fresh water port. On the other hand, if she leaves a fresh water port with her cargo she will rise when entering the ocean. So a ship may be loaded apparently too much at a wharf and still be all right on the waves.

In building a dam the fact of salt water's being heavier than fresh must be taken into consideration, and the dam for the same head must be a good deal stronger; this, too, without taking into consideration the beating of waves, etc.—St. Louis Republic.

Britain's Civil Service.

Life in a civil service office is a very drab affair today. But sixty years ago it appears to have had its compensations. Sir Algernon West, who entered the admiralty in 1851, recalls, in his "Reminiscences," the figure of an official "always dressed in a black and snuffy suit." It was the chief clerk. This gentleman "occasionally came to the office in the morning dressed in a great frilled shirt front and evening clothes and announced that, as he was going to dine out that evening, he should not be at the office the next day. Frederick Locker, who always wore kid gloves in the office for fear he would dirty his hands with ink * * * was evidently not impressed with the dignity of the man or the office, for on my asking him what his duties were he said, 'All I know is, that whenever I want a clean towel or a piece of fresh soap, I always ring the bell and send for the chief clerk!'" —London Citizen.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Rushville People Learn
the Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first; But if you find 'tis from the kidneys; That serious kidney troubles may follow; That dropsy or Bright's disease may be the fatal end, You will be glad to know the following experience. 'Tis the statement of a Rushville citizen.

Samuel A. Brown, R. R. No. 10, Rushville, Ind., says: "I had a severe attack of backache and it got worse every day. Finally, the trouble got so bad that I could hardly raise my foot above the ground. When I stooped, I thought by back would break. Someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box. I was very much surprised at the prompt way in which they stopped the trouble. In a few days I was free from pain."

ELEANOR WOODRUFF.

SCENE FROM "THE FRINGE ON THE GLOVE."

"THE FRINGE ON THE GLOVE" is a dramatic story of life in the west, in which the devotion of true friendship plays a most important part.

Eleanor Woodruff, whose character work has made her famous, has one great ambition in life—that is to play a lead in a crazy comedy. She says she would like to trade places with lovely Mabel Normand for a day.

In "Maree, the Halfbreed," a woman gives all that she has to give to a worthless man. He degrades her and casts her off. Another woman with no knowledge of his previous alliance sacrifices herself to him. The first, with all the hatred and fury of a woman scorned, seeks revenge. Her hand is stayed by the helpless and innocent victim of the man's perfidy. A common sorrow brings the women together.

In "His Last Call" the actor's years of success are forgotten, and the last days of his life are days of poverty and turndowns by managers and agents. The old actor attends one of the plays in which he has often played the leading part and is recognized. The leading man is unable to go on, and the old thespian is asked to take his place. His wonderful acting is a triumph, and he is called and recalled before the curtain. The excitement and joy of it all are too much for the old man, and he smilingly answers the last call before a greater and higher audience.

"The Hand of Horror" is a sensational drama in which a young steeple-jack clings to the hands of a great clock on the very top of a skyscraper while the man who locked him out upon the face of the clock becomes insane at the thought of what he has done.

"When the Men Left Town" the women get control of the town and stop smoking, drinking and gambling. The men revolt and leave. The women suddenly discover that the mere male is very handy when it comes to heavy work. There is a demonstration against the mayoress, and the men are recalled.

The suffragettes win the day in "The New Fire Chief." The old fire chief, Bunny, is displaced by a progressive militant. She gets rid of the old fire horses. An auto engine takes their places. Things look promising until a fire occurs. The new chief neglects her duty for the sake of her toilet while the fire burns. The auto has a mishap, and the town is threatened with a conflagration. Bunny, who has purchased his old horse and buggy, dashes to the rescue, gets the fire under control and proves himself the right man in the right place.

Miss Olive Buell will entertain the embroidery club tomorrow afternoon at her home east of the city

Miss Ethel Downey and Ralph Pearsey were married last evening at the First Baptist church parsonage by the Rev. S. G. Huntington.

The tenth anniversary of the Modern Art Club which was to have been held on the lawn at the home of Mrs. William Denny and Mrs. M. S. Shropshire, corner of Perkins and Third streets, was postponed today until a week from Thursday because of the inclement weather.

Miss Rena Laurel Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Watson, and Emmett Fegley, son of Mrs. Catherine Fegley of Delaware, Ohio, were married last night at the Main Street Christian church parsonage by the Rev. C. M. Yecum. After a short trip they will be at home in North Main street.

A church wedding that was marked by the utmost simplicity was that last night of Miss Mary Belle Jamieson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Jamieson, and Quinn W. McCord, of Colville, Washington, performed at the United Presbyterian church in the presence of approximately two hundred guests by the father of the bride. He was assisted by two of his brothers, the Rev. Ralph A. Jamieson of Morning Sun, Ohio, and the Rev. Howard M. Jamieson of Riverside, California.

For fifteen minutes before the ceremony Miss Jessie Kitchen played a program of wedding music and Miss Norma Smith, Miss Anna Overman and Mrs. T. A. Craig sang a trio, "The Bridal Chorus" from "The Rose Maiden." Miss Ethel Gabby of Little York, Illinois, sang a solo, "O Precious Love." Then the organist broke into the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March and the bridal party entered.

A simple, but very impressive ring ceremony was used. Little Genevieve and Genevieve Jamieson, twin daughters of Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Jamieson and cousins of the bride, were flower girls and Master Howard Hogue, little son of Mrs. C. E. Hogue of Monmouth, Ill., was the ring bearer. The Rev. Roy Jamieson of Philadelphia, Pa., another brother of the Rev. Mr. Jamieson of this city, was the bridegroom's man. Miss Gabby, a school friend of the bride's in Monmouth college, was the bridesmaid.

The Misses Anna and Elizabeth

Waite of this city and the Misses Nelle Fee and Mary Logan of Clarksburg were ushers.

The bride wore a white silk crepe gown, trimmed in lace, a beautiful bridal veil and carried a bride's bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in yellow taffeta, trimmed with lace. Mrs. Jamieson wore a blue silk crepe dress, trimmed in lace.

The wedding colors were yellow and white. The church was exquisitely decorated. The order of wild flowers pervaded the atmosphere. The mass of greenery banked about the altar and in every corner of the room set off to excellent advantage the yellow and white, elder blossoms, milady's washbowls and hollyhock. The flowers that were taken from their natural surroundings added a delicious touch to the richness of the decorations. Large candles burned from the bank of ferns and palms about the altar.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party held a reception for all the wedding guests in the southeast hall of the church.

Afterward there was a reception at the home. It was decorated tastefully in yellow and white roses and smilax, and candles were used to fine advantage.

There were guests present from eight different states and among them were: Mrs. Mary A. Jamieson of Monmouth, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Jamieson of Monmouth, Ill.; the Rev. Howard M. Jamieson of Riverside, Cal.; the Rev. and Mrs. Ralph A. Jamieson and family of Morning Sun, O.; the Rev. Roy V. Jamieson of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Jennie Logue Campbell of Monmouth, Ill.; Mrs. Wallace T. Wherry of Wyoming, Iowa; Miss Edgel Cabbly of Little York, Illinois, the Misses Nelle Fee and Mary Logan of Clarksburg; Mrs. M. J. McCord of Coleville, Wash., mother of the bridegroom; Mrs. C. E. Hogue and son Howard of Monmouth, Ill.; Paul Bailey of Gary, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Smith of Monmouth, Ill., and Miss Anna Overman of Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. McCord left last night for Coleville, Wash., where they will be at home after September 1. Mr. McCord is engaged in business there as an undertaker. They expect to stop off on their journey for a visit in several places with friends and relatives.

Roberts and Democracy.

A piece of news "broke" recently that the friends of the candidates on the Democratic state ticket wish could have been surprised; a piece of news that it goes without saying will not be published in all of the Democratic newspapers of the state. It was nothing more than the announcement that Donn M. Roberts, the notorious mayor of Terre Haute, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Indiana in 1916. Roberts' candidacy is accepted as an evidence of the character of the leadership with which the Democratic party in this state has come to be afflicted with in those latter days. Roberts is the man of whom John E. Lamb, formerly one of the big figures in Indiana Democracy and vice-chairman of the Democratic national committee in 1908, said over his own signature "his only claim to political distinction is his ability to stuff ballot boxes, pad poll books and vote repeaters."

Roberts' announcement created a storm of protest from friends of the Democratic state candidates, who immediately sent out word that Roberts had denied telling W. M. Blodgett of the Indianapolis News, that he is candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. However, Roberts' closest friends say he is in the race to stay but that the public announcement was a bit "premature."

Roberts is the man who recently was tried in the Vigo county circuit court on the charge of election corruption. A man indicted with him was convicted and sentenced to a term in the Indiana penitentiary. The Terre Haute election fraud cases came to a sudden end following a mysterious conference in Indianapolis between Crawford Fairbanks and others; Fairbanks the big brewer who is said to enjoy hugely being referred to as "the big boss of Indiana Democracy."

The announcement of Donn Roberts' candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was made at Evansville during the Democratic editorial association meeting. "Uncle Crawl" Fairbanks, who is behind the candidacy of Roberts, also was present at that meeting. According to report from Evansville, some of the Democratic editors were mad enough at the activity of Roberts and Fairbanks to "bite nails in two."

"It has reached the point" said a disgusted Capital City Democrat today "where the worst element of the liquor interests are in absolute control of the Democratic party in Indiana. This announcement by Roberts of Terre Haute only goes to show how brazen and bold are the liquor interests. If 'Crawl' Fairbanks wants Roberts nominated for Governor he will be nominated. So great is the brewer's hold on the Democratic machine. It begins to look as if he is determined to make the effort to foist onto the state of Indiana the kind of government or lack of government that he has foisted on the city of Terre Haute and Vigo county. Here's one Democrat and there are thousands of others in the state who will quietly do in November what I am going to do—vote against the Democratic state ticket—the hand picked candidates of as conscienceless a political machine as was ever organized in any state in the Union. We don't intend to take any chance of having such men as Donn Roberts forced on the state."

CONFERENCE WILL ACCOMPLISH LITTLE

Even Hopeful Observers Today do Not Believe Breach Between Villa and Carranza Will be Healed

(By United Press.)

El Paso, Texas, July 1.—Even hopeful observers today expressed a belief that the coming conference between General Carranza and Villa will not heal the breach. They believe Villa will carry out his threats to set himself up as head of the Constitutional government.

The conference probably will be held at San Pedro, midway between Saltillo and Torreon as the dividing line between the territories of Villa and Carranza. Carranza's friends say that if the conference were held at Torreon, as originally proposed, the Carranza envoys would constantly have been surrounded by General Villa's soldiers.

NOT ENOUGH TO GET ON TICKET

Progressive Candidate in Minnesota's Primary Fail to Meet Requirements of State Law.

ONLY 2,087 VOTES ARE CAST

Whereas Republican Vote is 189,097 and the Democratic Vote is 42,775. Bull Moose Loss.

Dispatches from St. Paul today reveal the fact that the Progressives of Minnesota are in the same plight as those of North Dakota. Their candidates for state office did not get enough votes in the primary last night to qualify them for a place on the general election ballot. The Indianapolis Star today printed the following dispatch from St. Paul:

Candidates of the Progressive party for state offices, may have to go through the formality of being nominated by petition because they failed at Minnesota's recent primary election to receive the number of votes required by law to place their names on the general election ballot.

The state canvassing board, however, had certified the nominations, together with those of the other parties, before its attention was called to the legal provision last night. Secretary of State Schmahl, a member of the board, said he proposed to let the nominations stand, leaving the matter open for any voter to take to court, if he desired.

The Progressive gubernatorial vote in the primary June 16, last, totaled 2,874, compared with 33,455 in the 1912 primary.

The total vote polled by the gubernatorial candidates of the Republican party in this year's primary election was 189,097, while the Democratic candidates for the nomination for Governor received 42,775 votes.

Russian-Greek Catholic Church

Its Peculiar Services Witnessed and Described and Other Interesting Details Given

By J. FEUDNER

Last Sunday Mrs. Feudner and I attended services at the Russian-Greek-Catholic church in Denver (for educational purposes), and since the form of worship in this church is so radically different from anything usually seen, I thought a description might interest the readers of the Republican.

The church is located at the extreme northern limits of the city of Denver, where there are plenty of vacant lots and the streets are not yet systematically defined. We started in ample time, but a transfer to a suburban car delayed us, so that we did not arrive at the church until the services had started.

As we approached the church we saw one of the acolytes (altar boys) in a green garment reaching to the ground getting a pitcher of water at a neighboring house, and afterwards near the close of the services, another boy in a yellow garment was again sent out with the pitcher.

We did not expect to find such an edifice as the Kremlin at Moscow, but rather a small church and a small congregation. When we entered the edifice we found the congregation standing, and so we took a stand near some women near the entrance, but in looking around I readily saw our mistake. I noticed that all the men were on the right side and the women on the left, and then I remembered this to be the custom in all European churches and in most all foreign churches in this country. I then walked over and stood among the men—full blooded Russians.

The services consisted of chanting by the priest and singing by the congregation alternately, and this was kept up for three-quarters of an hour. At first the priest could not be seen, but finally he threw open an open-work double door and he was then visible. During this responsive chant (which was the regular liturgy of the church), this scroll-work door was opened and closed as the ritual demanded. No organ was used to accompany the singing as musical instruments are not used in the Eastern Orthodox church.

About one-fourth of the inside space of the church building was partitioned off and the floor of this partition space raised two or three feet. The partition, which reached to the ceiling, was a paneled one, and each panel had painted on it a holy picture or icon as they are called. In the middle was an open scroll-work double door, behind which the priest officiated.

Over this door near the ceiling hung a lamp with the perpetually burning flame, and a little further away from the partition hung two large candelabrum each holding from thirty to forty candles, and then there was another ordinary tin candle holder upon a stand holding as many candles—all burning. Upon two other stands rested framed and glass covered icons at a convenient inclination for imprinting of kiss by worshippers. (A description of the altar and other details are given below.)

In front of me, where I stood, there was a box conveniently placed, which had three compartments, holding 10c, 15c and 25c candles, and another small compartment into which the price of the candles was thrown. Afterwards when the regular collection was taken, this money was also taken up and added to the collection. I presumed that before the regular liturgy was started, certain members bought candles and placed them into the large holder mentioned and had them burning during services. Coming late to church, I missed this part, nor did I learn the significance of the burning of the candles—presumably this had the same significance as the burning of the candles in the Roman Catholic church.

At the conclusion of the chanting of the liturgy the priest stepped forward in front of the double door and gave a short talk to the congregation, and this was in Russian of which we did not understand a word. After that the congregation walked forward in single file—the men first, and then the women and lastly the children—to take holy communion. They stopped in front of one icon, made the sign of the cross, kissed the icon, then stepped in front of the priest, made another sign of the cross, and kissed a gilt crucifix which he held, and also kissed the hand holding it; then they took a piece of the holy bread from a plate, then stepped up to another icon, made the sign of the cross, and kissed the icon, after which they returned to their places, eating the holy bread. After all the men, women and children had made the round the services were at an end without further ceremony.

The following additional details I gleaned from the records in the large public library of the city of Denver.

The Greek-Catholic church is strongly oriental, unintelligibly symbolical and mystical and excessively ritualistic. It rejects the organ and other musical instruments and sculpture, except the flat images or icons, and makes less use of the fine arts in their churches than the Roman Catholics. But they have even a more complicated system of ceremonies with gorgeous display semi-barbaric pomp, and endless changes of sacerdotal dress, crossing gestures, genuflexions, prostrations, washings, processions, which so absorb the attention of the senses that there is little room left for intellectual and spiritual worship.

The term "liturgy" is specially given to the service of the mass, which are in two forms, the longer and the shorter form, and these are in antiquated dialects according to the country where used, and are but little understood by the people. What we should term sermons are little known the principal substitute for them being the recital of the life of some saint, often full of fabulous details and miraculous stories.

Almost every Russo-Greek church is built in a form of the Byzantine style, with a cupola or dome surmounted by a (Greek) cross, over the east end and a belfry at the west. There is an entrance hall, a main building in which the worshippers stand (there being no seats) and an altar enclosure raised two or three steps above the rest of the building with a partition or screen near the front completely covered with "icons" or holy pictures of saints.

In front of each principal icon is a candelabrum of great size capable of containing thirty to forty candles. In the center of the partition is a double door, which is open at times, and behind which the priest stands during the liturgy.

The whole space behind this partition is called the altar, containing a square table called the throne, which corresponds with the altar of the Roman church; on this are placed the gospels, a gilt cross for the congregation to kiss, the box containing the elements of the eucharist, and a silk handkerchief containing a very special piece of silk or linen about 15 inches square, having stamped on it a representation of the burial of the Christ. This emblem is called an "antimins" and is essential to the existence of the church, being consecrated by the archbishop of the diocese and conveying his blessing to the building. A minute portion of some holy relic, anointed with consecrated oil, is fixed on that side of the "antimins" which is turned toward the east. The altar coverings are of special value and of symbolical importance—one complete linen covering made in the form of a cross, symbolizes the linen clothes of the Savior in His tomb; another very rich one signifies the glory of God.

Within this altar space there is another table on the north side, called the altar of sacrifice, on which are placed the holy vessels, together with a spear, in memory of that which pierced the Savior's side, and which is used for cutting small triangular portions of bread for the sacrament, the spoon for administering the sacrament, etc.

The priests put on their samonicals in this altar space and perform most of the service standing and moving about in it, little heard by the congregation. The priestly garment include the alle, a kind of frock with loose sleeves laced cuffs, belt, stole, chasuble, and a special square piece of brocade hanging from the shoulder.

Concerning the icons so universally used and venerated by the Greek-Catholic church and the influence of these sacred pictures in Russia, Dean Stanley says:

"Everywhere, in public and in private, the sacred picture is the consecrating element. In the corner of every room, at the corner of every street, over gateways, in offices, in steamers, in stations, in taverns is the picture hung with the lamp burning before it. In domestic life it plays the part of the family Bible, of the wedding gift, of the birthday present, etc. In the national life it is the watchword, the flag which has supported the courage of generals and roused the patriotism of troops. * * * Enter within any church such as those at Moscow, which best represent the national feeling. There the veneration has reached a pitch which gives an aspect to the whole building unlike any European church. From top to bottom, from side to side, walls and roof and screen and columns are a mass of gilded pictures, not one of any artistic value, but all cast in the same ancient mold."

Many more interesting details could be given concerning the Greek-Catholic church, such as the ceremony of baptism, the ceremonies of the very numerous fasts, the yearly communion, the ceremony of the extreme unction, and the very peculiar burial rites and ceremonies, but it would make article too long.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look years younger! Use Grandmother's recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur and nobody will know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy and abundant.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR-A CLEAN COOL SCALP

Use Parisian Sage. It Makes the Hair Fluffy and Abundant.

It is needless for you to have hair that is anything short of perfect. If it is falling out, losing color, splitting, or if the scalp burns and itches, immediately get from F. B. Johnson & Co., or any drug counter a 50-cent bottle of Parisian Sage—use it frequently—the first application removes dandruff, invigorates the scalp, and beautifies the hair until it is gloriously radiant.

Parisian Sage supplies hair needs—it is perfectly harmless. It contains the exact elements required to make the hair soft, wavy, glossy and to make it grow thick and beautiful.

You will surely like Parisian Sage. It is one of the best and most delightful hair tonics known.

Washington Still Hears Peary-Cook North Polar Controversy

BY BURTON K. STANDISH
(Written for United Press.)

Washington, July 1.—The Peary-Cook North Polar controversy is still creating occasional amusement in Washington. A newspaperman was standing on a street corner waiting for a car the other day when Rear Admiral Peary, head erect, shoulders back, marched past.

"Know who that is?" inquired a passerby, admiringly of the newspaperman. "No," said the newspaperman, to see what the "free guide" would say. "That's the man who discovered the North Pole," said his new friend, importantly. "You don't say. Is that Dr. Cook?" said the newspaperman, in pretended amazement, looking after Admiral Peary.

Too disgusted for words, the "free guide" walked away.

Mixing music and statistics, estimates are made here that residents of the national capital receive free band concerts every summer worth $100,000. Four and often more concerts are given weekly in the public parks, the most largely attended being those of the "President's Own" Marine band at the Capital on Wednesdays and White House grounds on Saturdays. The Army engineers and various cavalry and infantry bands play at other parks.

"Shirt sleeve justice" was a hot weather innovation at the United States Supreme Court, according to Dame Rumor. Dignity and heavy coats were doffed by the staid justices, it was reported, but all unknown to the lawyers and spectators attending the sessions. The yarn could not be verified because of the heavy flowing silken robes.

"Nicky Ben," one of the guests invited to the wedding of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Miss Eleanor Wilson, who spent the wedding day and some time afterward in a hospital, is out again, completely recovered. He had a leg broken a day before the wedding by falling under an automobile. "Nicky Ben" is the pet collie of Mrs. McAdoo. He is the constant companion now of McAdoo's children.

A. Z. Hunt, a noted, veteran Potomac River fisherman, is today the envy of all the local disciples of Isaac Walton. The envy is inspired by what is claimed to be a "record catch" in all history of Potomac bass fishing—incidentally famous through the country—of a big, small-mouth black bass. Hunt's catch tipped the scales at 6½ pounds. It measured 22½ inches, and was landed after a play of 20 minutes above the dam at the famous Great Falls of the Potomac.

A "Rip Van Winkle" of the Civil War is on the rolls today of the Kit Carson Post, No. 2, Department of the Potomac of the Grand Army of the Republic, in the person of Jedediah W. Higgins. According to assertion to friends, Higgins never knew until a few days ago that a G. A. R. existed. He went to New Zealand after the war closed, in Salvation Army Work, and never knew of the veteran's organization. He fought in the 173rd New York volunteer infantry.

Mark Thistlewaite was performing the duties of his office, secretary to the Vice-President of the United States, the other morning by opening the vice-president's mail. Suddenly, as he read a letter, he ceased his whistling, and became sad.

"What's the matter?" inquired a friend. "Here's a man," said Mark, "who has named a baby after President Wilson. Do suppose if he had a baby next year the honor will fall to me?" "What would the baby's name be then?" inquired the visitor. "Mark Thistlewaite Long," said Mark, sadly.

White clothes are the only things to wear in summer, Secretary of State Bryan thinks. He wears them himself and advises all his friends to do the same.

"I'm glad to see the newspapermen putting on linen suits," he said. "It's a great relief in this hot city. I didn't think much of them, but Mrs. Bryan said I had to get a white suit—so I did—and I wouldn't change now for anything."

KILLED BY A MOSQUITO

Exactly — there are hundreds of deaths each year that can be directly or indirectly traced to the simple little bites of mosquitoes. These little pests carry and spread disease. It's not so much the sting of their bite as the dread of infection. Therefore you should take extra precaution to treat mosquito bites as being more than mere bites.

Penslar Skeeter Dig

not only allays the itch and sting, but sterilizes the part affected because of its antiseptic and healing properties. Used as a protection from the effect of mosquito bites, this lotion becomes doubly valuable. Put a bottle of it in your grip. --

GLOOM IN NAVY CIRCLES TODAY

Has Not Foundered But It's High and Dry by Order of Secretary Daniel

IN EFFECT FOR FIRST TIME

Is so Sweeping That Officer on Shore Cannot Have any Liquor—

They are Responsible

Washington, July 1.—No more is the jolly jack tar's song, "Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum."

The navy went dry today.

Secretary Daniel's orders against the officers' wine mess, the use of any alcoholic beverage aboard battleships or in land stations or officers' clubs ashore was clamped on today. Consequently there was gloom in navy circles today. They felt the new order might be a hardship sometimes, and besides it swept away a time-honored custom. It means practically total abstinence for navy officers and men, at least while on a cruise.

The order is so sweeping that an officer ashore cannot have any liquor, provided he maintains a residence in a naval reservation. Commanding officers are made responsible for enforcement of the order.

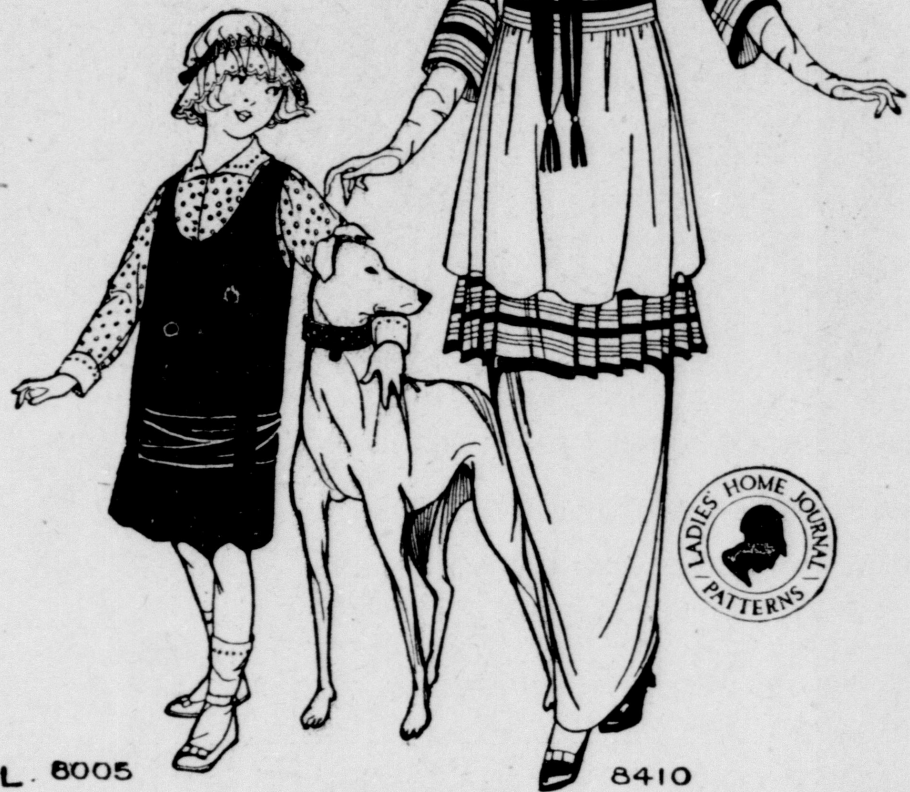

Secretary Daniel's dry order was promulgated sometime ago, on recommendation of Surgeon General Braisted, who felt that liquor aboard battleships was not conducive to the high standard set by the administration. The secretary's early investigations of the navy surprised him, for he found that officers were allowed to buy light wines in the wine mess and to serve it with dinners. Likewise his friendship with Secretary of State Bryan, an ardent temperance devotee, is believed to have figured in his dry navy decision.

The official order reads: "The use or introduction for drinking purposes of alcoholic liquors on board any vessel or within any yard or station is strictly prohibited, and commanding officers will be held directly responsible for the enforcement of this order."

AN ATTRACTIVE ADAPTATION OF THE POPULAR BOLERO

There is something youthful and charming about the bolero that makes it a favorite the moment fashion glances its way. It is popular for both suits and dresses and is being made up in all sorts of materials from spangled net for the evening gown to serge for the street suit.

In this instance, 8410, it forms the bodice of an afternoon frock of blue and black taffeta. This bolero has a kimono top, closes with a single button over a sleeveless guimpe of white organdy. The body of the dress is of midnight blue and the tasseled tie and plaited second tunic are of black. This frock may be copied in size 36, with 5¼ yards of 36-inch material.

The practical looking little garment illustrated in 8005 is an apron, but it may easily be made to serve as a frock and a very dainty one too, if fashioned of a sheer cotton or other material suited to children's clothes. The guimpe which accompanies the apron may be omitted when an apron alone is desired. As shown here one of the figured cottons is used and a broad sashing ribbon forms the low hung belt.

For a child of 10, 2 yards of 36-inch material with 1½ yards of the same width for the guimpe, is required.

CLOTHES FOR THOSE WHO ENJOY THE OUT-OF-DOOR WORLD

In order to enjoy whatever sport she favors most, the out-of-door woman must be dressed appropriately from head to toe. There can be no abnormally tight skirts or hats that refuse to stay "put." For the last season or two perhaps we have come to realize this more than ever before and designers have given more attention to sport clothes with the result that one is not obliged to go to extremes of dowdiness in order to be comfortable but may have coats, skirts, and hats that are as modish and becoming as any other costume and at the same time—comfortable.

The long, loose coat of tweed shown in 8320 is an excellent model to slip on over the riding habit, tennis or golf costume. It may be made up in a cravenette or a plain material quite as effectively as in tweed. The coat has a raglan shoulder, mannish collar and revers and large patch pockets. To copy this model in size 36, 4 1/4 yards of 36-inch material is needed. Black and white checked novelty cotton is used for the suit, 7872-8327; the coat is a straight box model and the skirt a three-piece design with just a bit of fullness at the top laid in soft plaits about the waist. Whereas this is an excellent sport suit, made up in a dark serge or gabardine it would be quite as effective for the street or for business wear. This suit may be made up in size 36, with 2 3/4 yards of 42-inch material for the coat (7872) and 2 3/4 yards of the same width for the skirt (8327). Number 8320 comes in sizes 34 to 44. Number 7872 comes in sizes 34 to 42. Number 8327 comes in sizes 22 to 30. Each pattern, 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

RATT RAT LAW IS NO LONGER JOKE

School Authorities Say Recent Prosecution For Violation is Outrage—May Fight it.

EXPECT STAMPEDE FOR CHART

Trustees Over State Urged to Disregard Statute Until Steps can be Taken by Board.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, July 1.—The Ratt rat law is no longer a joke. Within a week reports have been spread broadcast over the state that for a violation of this law a township trustee was fined $10 and costs. He was found guilty of having to provide his school with illustrated lessons telling the dangers of rats and how to combat them. The natural results of this case will be that township trustees will join in a stampede to buy illustrated charts to obey the law. A concern is at this time making a systematic canvass of Indiana selling charts that come up to the law.

The affidavit against this trustee was filed in a justice of the peace court by a deputy constable who filed it on information and who refused to make known the name of his informant. This deputy was appointed by and is under Constable William Wilson, who on two occasions has been temporarily deprived of his office because his bondsmen refused longer to vouch for him. The constable's fee in this case is $6.

J. I. Hoffman, assistant state superintendent of public instruction said today he believed the action of bringing trustees to account because they had no illustrated lessons on rats should be frowned on and discouraged.

"It is an outrage to prosecute a trustee simply because he has no illustrated chart," he said. "We stand back of the trustee. It is the first time that a trustee has been expected to go in some minute detail beyond the course of study provided by the state board. Constables and courts should in my opinion cease such action until the state board can revise its course of study and provide the trustee with a simple and inexpensive sheet giving lessons on rats, if that is necessary."

Hoffman explained that the physiologies now in the schools covered the law except in one minute detail. The law provides for the illustrative teaching of "the anatomy, physiology and hygiene of the human system; the effect of alcohol and nicotine; the cause of and course of consumption; the dissimulation of diseases by rats, flies and mosquitoes and the effect thereof and the consumption of food." The physiologies now in use covered every particular of the law except the one on rats, treating on flies and mosquitos, alcohol and nicotine, the consumption of food and the physiology and hygiene of the human system. The physiologies are illustrated.

Charts now being sold to trustees over the state are elaborate affairs and are costly. They are the identical charts that formerly were sold with the addition of one sheet on rats. It is probable that they will now have a big sale.

Manford Burk of Decatur township, Marion county, was the trustee fined. It cost him $24. He said the charts cost $15 each, and that because his school is a consolidated one he will have to provide six or seven charts, costing the township upwards of $100. He said he had not been able to learn the name of the man who furnished the constable with his information. He said he employed W. W. Spencer as his attorney, because he was the attorney for the township.

$10,000 For Prohibition

J. B. LEWIS.

J. B. Lewis, whose home is in Boston Mass., recently gave $10,000 to the Flying Squadron of America for prohibition. He will speak at the Coliseum Thursday afternoon.

Before the trial and during the trial Spencer at all times said that the law required that charts be provided by the trustees. Later he admitted that the word "charts" does not appear in the law. He said he didn't ask for an examination of the physiology in use because it would have prolonged the trial over two or three days. He said the rat law was a fine thing and that rates were a pest in many places.

Justices of the peace agree that while a constable is acting within his right in filing an affidavit on information, it is a very unusual action, not resorted to at all in many courts that pride themselves on their character.

Burk's attorney gathered no evidence in support of the trustee. He advised his client that he would himself have to pay his attorney fees if the case was carried to a higher court.

REMODELS CLUBFOOTED BOY.

Surgeon Cuts Ligaments, Separates Tendons and Readjusts Bones.

With feet that were formerly "clubbed" and turned under and that are now quite normal, little William Averill, a five-year-old boy, whose home is near Oxford, N. C., left the Emergency hospital, Washington, after having undergone an operation which has proved one of the greatest triumphs of modern surgery ever won in Washington.

The operating surgeon, Dr. A. R. Shands, went to work on one foot and then on the other, cutting ligaments here, separating tendons and readjusting bones there and all but amputating the unconscious child's feet.

Then both members were readjusted, given the necessary antiseptic treatment and then skillfully wrapped in great plaster of paris cases, which extended to the knees.

Again the limp little form was put to bed, and it was not many hours before he recovered from the anaesthetic. The patient resumed his cheerfulness in time, and the process of healing was rapid. Finally he was allowed to move about in bed, and each day he became more active.

WHO WILLIAM G. SHARP IS.

Facts Concerning Ohioan Nominated to Be Our Ambassador to France.

Representative William G. Sharp, ranking Democratic member of the Ohio delegation nominated by President Wilson to be ambassador to France, is a wealthy manufacturer of Elyria. He is fifty-five years old and a lawyer. He was elected to the Sixty-first congress, to the Sixty-second congress and re-elected to the Sixty-third congress.

He and his twin brother, George, attended the public schools of Elyria and were commonly known as "Big Glib" and "Little Glib."

Representative Sharp acquired wealth in the manufacture of wood alcohol and has valuable real estate holdings at Elyria and Lorain.

Mr. Sharp will succeed Myron T. Herrick, former Republican governor of Ohio. His Democratic colleagues characterize him as "an old fashioned Cleveland type" of Democrat. During the pre-convention campaigns he supported Judson Harmon of Ohio for the Democratic presidential nomination. After Mr. Wilson's nomination was assured he went to work in behalf of the president.

NEEDLEWORK

MARGARET LAWRENCE

A SIMPLE AND DECORATIVE DESIGN FOR A PLATTER-CLOTH.

Platter-cloths are a great saving to the table-cloth, for the carver is often unfortunate enough to spill a piece of meat, thereby spoiling the appearance of the whole table. Nothing affects one's appetite quite so quickly as the condition of the table, and often one who is not hungry may be tempted to eat, if the table and food look attractive.

This very simple yet decorative design for a platter-cloth, No. 14576, is 12 1/2 inches wide by 18 inches long, but a larger cloth may be made by omitting the scalloped edge and finishing it with a hemstitched hem. It may be made of a fine quality of round-thread linen and embroidered in solid work, eyelets and French knots. If a less elaborate design is desired, the French knots, which appear between each eyelet connecting the leaves, may be omitted without spoiling the effect. These, however, must be cut from the tissue paper before stamping the design. A particularly attractive effect may be gained, if a more elaborate design is wanted by substituting drawnwork for these lines of dots and French knots. Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern will be supplied to readers upon receipt of price, 15 cents.

WINTERS CASE AT STAND STILL

Nine Days Left Before Trial of Those

Accused and Nothing Definite is Known

THE PROSECUTION IS DUBIOUS

Half Way Expected That Prosecutor

Will Move to Dismiss—Detective

is in Indianapolis

(By United Press.)

Newcastle, Ind., July 1.—With nine days left before the trial of Dr. W. A. Winters, Mrs. Winters and W. R. Cooper on the charge of conspiring to murder and burn the body of Catherine Winters, the case is apparently at a stand still. If Walter R. Meyers, county prosecutor, is making an attempt to get additional evidence, he has kept the fact quiet. Mayor Lem Watkins still evinces an interest in the case, but his plans are unknown. Detective Abel has not been here for some weeks, and is understood to be waiting in Indianapolis for expense money. Dr. and Mrs. Winters have continued their trip over the state, exhibiting views associated with the missing child and reaping a big harvest of nickels, due to the wide publicity given the case.

Myers has been asked repeatedly whether he would move to dismiss the cases on July 10 when they are set for trial, but he has kept a puzzling silence even with his friends, and no inkling is given of his intentions.

An impression is gaining strength here that the cases will not materialize even if brought to trial. This belief is caused mainly by the inactivity of Myers and the fact that no further investigation has been made since Abel withdrew from the case. One report has it that Watkins stand ready to contribute out of his own pocket expense money for Abel. Abel has stated that $50 would induce him to return. The fact that so small an amount stands between the sleuth and his alleged quarry is considered by some as sufficient evidence that the Winters case so far as the present prosecutions are concerned, is practically dead. They say that only fresh and startling developments in the way of evidence will revive them sufficiently to result in a vigorous prosecution—and no one here is searching for that evidence.

Following the statement of Abel that it was a mistake to file charges of conspiracy against Winters, but that they should stand against Cooper and Mrs. Winters, some speculation has been current here.

No efforts have been made to have a special prosecutor appointed. This is now believed as unlikely as the prospect of a vigorous prosecution. Should Myers move on July 10 that the cases be dismissed, Judge Jackson might insist on a trial. A half-hearted prosecution might result.

WAITING FOR RESULTS

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., July 1.—Robert H. Abel, the detective in the Winters case at Newcastle, who is here awaiting developments in that city, admitted today that as the situation now is the prospect for a successful prosecution, or any prosecution at all at Newcastle July 10 was dubious. He is still waiting for funds from Newcastle to continue his investigation, and said all he wanted was expense money.

Dr. W. R. Winters, Mrs. Winters, and W. R. Cooper, the one armed telegrapher who roomed with the Winters' when the child disappeared, are charged with conspiring to murder and burn the body of Catherine Winters, who disappeared fifteen months ago.

Abel reiterated his charge that County Prosecutor Walter R. Meyers, is "playing politics." He said that Winters was firmly entrenched in certain circles at Newcastle and that Myers feared that to prosecute Winters would endanger his chances for re-election at the next election. Myers is a democrat, and this is the first time in years that Democrats have held office in Henry county.

Meanwhile, reports from over the state have it that Dr. Winters and Mrs. Winters have continued their visits to numerous cities, where they show their pictures of their home, the missing child, and tell the story of the disappearance, always making prominent their theory that Catherine was kidnapped by gypsies and is held for ransom in some out-of-the-way place.

Dr. Winters refuses to admit the chance that Catherine is dead and continues to laugh at the charge preferred by Abel that he or members of his family killed the child and burned the body. These lectures keep up interest over the state in the conspiracy cases and in the fate of Catherine.

BIG IDEA BASED ON ROBBERIES

Enterprising Advertising Man of Clothing Store Turns Loss Into

Smile for Boss

THE THIEVES WERE CAPTURED

(By United Press.)

Princeton, Ind., July 1.—An enterprising advertising man associated with a local clothing store can turn a sob into a smile and loss into profit. He even turned a robbery into profit recently.

This store has been robbed several times and the proprietor was getting restless about it. It didn't pay. Then came the idea. The most recent robbery was followed the next day by a declaration through the advertising columns of the local papers that the firm was robbed again "because the thieves wanted the best clothes in town".

When the thieves were captured last week another add appeared that ran like this:

George Dunbar and Herman Vail, paroled convicts, were captured at Oaktown yesterday afternoon and all stolen merchandise found.

"The burglars were asked—'Why did you break into --- & --- instead of some of the other stores? This store has had more than its share of robberies.'

"Dunbar said: 'Well, I tell you. We looked the town over, saw the best clothes in that store, and decided to patronize them.'"
